

Vintage Vocal Quartet

The Vintage Vocal Quartet, lead by vocalist David Thorne Scott, is inspired by groups like Glenn Miller's Modernaires, the Nat King Cole Trio, the Andrews Sisters, and Tommy Dorsey's Pied Pipers. Instruments include piano, acoustic bass, drums, guitar and horn.

Bandleader David Thorne Scott is a singer and songwriter who “explores the intersection of Jazz and Americana, city and country, instrumentation and lyrics to create lush compositions and covers that are unifying, and healing, in their beauty” (Eponymous Review). He has long been known for bringing a modern edge to the classics of the Great American Songbook and has been a featured soloist with the Boston Pops, the Capital Jazz Orchestra, the Cape Symphony, and the Bill Elliott Swing Orchestra. His composition “I See You” was featured on NBC’s “The Blacklist” on NBC. David is Professor of Voice at the internationally renown Berklee College of Music.
