

Evan Arntzen

Evan Arntzen

A third-generation musician, Evan Arntzen, began learning the music of Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, and other jazz greats at seven from his clarinetist grandfather. He has since developed his expressive voice as a clarinetist, saxophonist, and vocalist, which Grammy Award-winning jazz writer Ricky Riccardi calls “the very definition of timeless.” If you’re looking for hot sounds from the Jazz Age, classic swing-era crooning, or New Orleans’ good-time music, Evan Arntzen is the real deal.

